

ORTHODONTICS AT VERMILION

SPECIALIST ORTHODONTIST DR TOM NASIOPOULOS IS KEEN TO WORK WITH GDPs IN EDINBURGH TO SUPPORT THEIR ORTHO CASEWORK

Dr Tom Nasiopoulos DDS MDS PhD, a registered specialist in orthodontics (GDC 82392), joined Vermilion, The Smile Experts, at the start of this year. Dr Nasiopoulos provides orthodontics on a fully private basis, with a particular interest in a multi-disciplinary approach to treating adult cases.

Dr Nasiopoulos brings a diverse breadth of international experience in all aspects of orthodontics. He obtained his dental degree from the University of Thessaloniki, Greece, in 1986, before beginning specialist training in orthodontics at New York University in 1988. He moved to Lund University in Sweden, graduating in 1992 with an MDS degree in orthodontics. On returning to Greece in 1993, Dr Nasiopoulos combined working in private practice orthodontics with studying for his doctorate, and in 2003 he graduated with a PhD in orthodontics from the University of Thessaloniki.

In 2003, Dr Nasiopoulos was recognised as a specialist in orthodontics by the General Dental Council and, between 2003 and 2010 he divided his time between his own orthodontic clinic in Greece with an orthodontic practice in Berkshire. From 2010 to 2016 he focused entirely on his practice in Greece, before joining the clinical team at Vermilion where he resumes a dual-city role.

Dr Nasiopoulos is a vastly experienced orthodontist with

Sarah, one of Tom's recent patients, is delighted with her new ClearCorrect aligners

an infectious enthusiasm for his speciality. He has a particular interest in privately treating adult patients using clear braces and aligners, enabling him to straighten teeth often without the traditional unsightly metal brackets and wires. He will treat patients using the latest techniques, in particular digital impressions and case planning using the intra-oral scanner. Dr Nasiopoulos was recently appointed a keynote speaker for ClearCorrect clear aligners which straighten teeth invisibly, and he is now treating patients at Vermilion using this modality. You can view a case study written by a patient at Vermilion who is currently undergoing orthodontic treatment at vermilion.co.uk/news/

Dr Nasiopoulos is keen to work with general dental practitioners in Edinburgh to support their own orthodontic caseload. He has already hosted a CPD session with clinicians and led a successful lecture on "Orthodontic Diagnosis: Accuracy from the Start" at the recent Vermilion Symposium which was held for referring colleagues. He aims to increase channels of communication by way of a Vermilion Orthodontics Study Club, which is due to launch in autumn 2017. The aim is to collaborate with dental colleagues who currently offer orthodontics, share case studies and build a local network of ortho experience and support – to benefit all.

Dr David Offord, practice principal, said: "It is fantastic to have Tom as part of our team. He is an internationally educated and talented orthodontist, who demonstrates exceptional attention to detail in his speciality. His informative session at our recent Vermilion Symposium was very well received. We look forward to building on our relationships with our referring colleagues and helping to meet the growing demand, in particular from adult patients, for straight teeth achieved with minimum fuss."

MORE INFORMATION

To refer an orthodontic case to Dr Nasiopoulos, refer securely on www.vermilion.co.uk

To register interest in Vermilion's upcoming CPD series – launching autumn 2017 – please email events@vermilion.co.uk

Tom Nasiopoulos

